Nearly 20 years ago in 1996, ALPI Suisse opened the doors of our customs warehouse in Cadempino. This was to meet a request by the fashion house Gucci. Gucci needed a partner in Cadempino who knew their needs, dynamics and someone who was ready to join them in this new adventure. During these 20 years and after 5 years of customs formalities and pick & pack on behalf of Gucci, a new customs warehouse was opened in Bedano. It is located near the exit of Lugano North motorway and just a short distance from Lugano Agno airport, from where all the shipments for various clients of Gucci/Kering Group can be handled.

Our deposit is directly linked to the Swiss customs, which makes us very autonomous and flexible in every aspect of export and import operations. Our location is perfect because we are close to the Italian borders and we can collaborate with all our Italian ALPI offices and non, to guarantee the very best service. We offer weekly departures from our Italian offices with delivery inside the Swiss territory within 24/36 hours. We can count on the cooperation of Swiss transporters and also on the dedicated rail and shuttle services, depending on the urgency and the place of delivery. Thanks to this organization we are able to handle every kind of commodity, such as goods directed to Duty Free Shops at the airport and to Cruise Ship, Swiss watches, hanging garments, medicines, ADR/DGR consignments and high value shipments.

We have qualified personnel whom can help you with customs formalities and in every aspect of import/export, whether it be by Sea, Ground or Air. We have a worldwide network of agents and Swiss transporters at our disposal which enable us to manage export/import, triangulation transactions and operation from all ports and airports in North Europe.

During these years, we have created a great team and a solid structure where every employee is motivated by passion, dedication and commitment.

Hidden bays, pine forests & white sands

Beachets
The best of them, such as Migjorn, Illetes and Llevant, are long, long swathes of gorgeousness, with creamy white sand and water that dazzles with perfect clarity. In any listing of the best beaches in the Mediterranean, these must surely come somewhere near the top. Most of Formentera’s beaches are unofficially nudist.

Illetes
On the sand spit running north towards Ibiza, for decades this has been Formentera’s fashion beach, to which Euro groovers come for day-trips from Ibiza after a hard night at the clubs. There is no infrastructure here apart from a series of wood-built beachside restaurants, no showers, no sunbeds, no swimsuits. Illetes is beach life for folk who want to keep it simple – then head back to the yacht.

Platja Migjorn
The brilliant blue sea here comes at you with an almost physical force at Platja Migjorn after experiencing the dusty beige of the island’s interior.

Sant Francesc
The ‘capital village’. It has a main square, a fortified church, a Trumpton town hall, and a cluster of shops. Every day is hippy-market day. People in sandals and long cotton skirts pad about the tiny square, smoking roll-up cigarettes. Souvenir stalls sell sarongs and handmade jewelry.
There are several pretty towns and villages to consider as a base. Try somewhere along the south-eastern coast, like Santa Eularia. Wherever you stay though, most attractions will be less than a 40-minute drive away. And part of the appeal is the travelling, stopping off en route for a meal at some remote hostelry. Try Can Lluc, a charming rural hotel-restaurant in the hills near Sant Rafel, for a laid-back lunch among the olive groves.

Get surrounded by magical, special and colourful objects at Sluitz. Dive into a world of freedom, fun and funky flows. Get inspired. Bring a piece of this magical world into your house and into your life. If you’re not in love yet, we make you fall in love.

If your main aim is to lounge on a beach, you’re spoilt for choice. One of the most famous is Playa d’en Bossa, a three-mile stretch of white sand just south of Ibiza Town. While Playa d’en Bossa has everything from watersports to beachfront boutiques, it’s also home to two of Ibiza’s biggest clubs, so go further afield for peace and quiet. Try Portinatx, to the north, which has a stretch of sand popular with families.

The billboards advertising ‘opening parties’ and big name DJs appear by the roadside before you have even left the airport. From Pacha to Privilege, Eden to Es Paradis, it’s the clubs that bring most tourists to Ibiza each summer. For those who’ve not set foot in a club for the best part of a decade, or if the very thought of it makes you shudder, it’s tempting to write Ibiza off as a holiday destination. But behind the Balearic beats and the foam parties, is a relatively unspoilt, charming island with hidden bays and pine forests just waiting to be discovered.

A car is essential here. While Ibiza is quite small (221 square miles) and well served by buses and taxis, it’s best to have the freedom to drive down small twisty tracks to secret beaches or climb the winding roads to cliff tops with jaw-dropping views.
1. Saddle up for a hack through the forests and mountains of northern Ibiza.

2. Bring back some flavoured sea salt. The island’s salt pans date back to 800BC.

3. Try a local speciality such as guisat de peix, a hearty seafood stew with potato and garlic mayonnaise.

4. Take the Ibiza tourist train, which offers a variety of coastline routes, visiting some bigger towns and beaches.

5. Have a shot of locally-produced liqueur hierbas ibicencas. Made with plants such as thyme and rosemary, it packs a punch at 26 per cent alcohol.

6. Take a ferry or boat to Formentera.

7. Bag a bargain at a hippy market. The biggest, Punta Arabí in Es Cana, is held every Wednesday.

8. Taste local produce such as honey, almonds or fig jam.

9. Take a boat from San Antonio to the aquarium on Cap Blanc.

10. Ibiza boasts fantastic diving sites, including the national park of Las Salinas.
The excellence of knitwear lies in the quality of the yarn and in the research and innovation of new yarns. Pitti Filati is the leading show in this sector, and a place where ideas and concepts translate into knitwear. It’s an unmissable appointment for international stylists and those working in the fashion sector. Each season Pitti Filati proposes a Research Space, which is the centre of all creative expression and an experimental observatory where trends are analysed and launched.

In order to prolong the experience of the show, Pitti Immagine has created e-PITTI.com, a digital platform dedicated to the fashion sector, where, as well as videos and images, you can find technical details, yarn characteristics, weaves and colours for the upcoming season.
Purchase and sale invoices, contracts, logistics and transport paperwork literally pile up leaving a mountain of documents to be dealt with in different ways, depending on priority, procedures and approval processes. Going paperless and, therefore, going digital has heaps of advantages not least saving time and money.

According to an in-depth study on document filing in logistics conducted by Projest, we estimated that a freight forwarder who delivers an average of 800,000 shipments in a year, produces about 7 million pages of paper, considering all the documents that are needed in the shipping process. 7 million pages is such an enormous number that it is hard to imagine. So let’s try to put it into context: The total weight of that paper is about 35 tons; that is the same as 17 rhinos, 20 cars and more than 80,000 footballs.

If we take the area of an A4 sheet of paper, 7 million pages are the equivalent of 43,400 square meters and that is the same as 7 times the area of the White House, a half of the total area of the Alcatraz Penitentiary, or nearly the same as 6 football pitches.

If all these documents are to be filed in folders, we will need 466 square meters of shelves to accommodate 23,000 folders.

7 million pages convert into 1,038,000 files, just over 1 terabyte. An external hard disk that holds 1 terabyte weighs about 150 gr, a third of the weight of one football. How much space do those files take up? A mere 0.08 square meters. 50 years of filing would fill 50 hard disks, less than the space of a king size bed.
THE PROBLEM
These numbers clearly show how complex shipping paperwork is and how crucial it is to have a well-organized and efficient management of all these documents, in order to cut the cost and time of: filing, retrieval and dispatching.

BENEFITS OF GOING PAPERLESS
An efficient document flow is strategic for the proper functioning of the freight transport logistics: the business process depends on the punctuality of the provision of information. It is clear that going paperless could be complex and involve many organization, process and IT issues but it has obvious fundamental advantages.

GOING DIGITAL MEANS:
- Reducing billing time;
- Getting information quickly from different in-house sources;
- Improving document traceability;
- Simplifying filing;
- Reducing document retrieval time;
- Reducing the risk of error and/or loss of documents;
- Cutting costs;
- Optimizing resources.
